NUMB. 738

TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 15. 1737.

11<sup>o</sup> 746.

Modena, October 20. O. S.

IMEDIATELY after the Death of Rainaud d'Est, our most Serene Duke, of Glorious Memory, the Princesses Benedicte and Amelia, his eldest Daughters, who, according to the Provision made by their Brother the most Serene Duke Francis III. are, in his Absence, to administer the Government of his Dominions, took care to give the necessary Orders for the Obsequies of the deceased Duke; whose Body being opened, embalmed, and dressed in the Roman Habit, with a Collar of the Golden Fleece, was exposed on a Bed of State, in one of the largest Rooms of the Ducal Palace, which was illuminated with a great Number of Wax-Candles. The Two following Days, viz. Monday and Tuesday, several Masses were celebrated; and on Tuesday in the Afternoon Divine Offices were continued, to be recited by the Regular Clergy. In the Evening after Sun-Set, the Corps was carry'd in a Mourning Coach, cover'd with a long Black Cloth, and drawn by Six Horses, to the Church of St. Vincent of the Theatin Friars; here, after the usual Obsequies, it was deposited in a magnificent Mausoleum, begun by the late most Serene Isabel of Savoy, the Deceased's Aunt by the Mother's Side, and perfected some Years ago by the Duke. The Lamentation of the whole City, as well as of the most Serene Princesses his Daughters, and of the Princes his Nephews, who are here, is irrepressible; and the Subjects have no other Consolation, than the Hopes of seeing the great Loss repaired by the mild Government of his most Serene successor. The following Epitaph has been composed for him by Signior Muratori, the late Duke's Librarian.

QUIS heic claudatur, si quavis, Lector, accipe.
RAYNALDUS I. Mutinae, Regii, Mirandulae, Marchio Eftenfis, Rhodigiique Comes, natus est vii Kal. Maji Anno Chr. MDCLV. diem vero suum vii Kal. Novembris, Anno MDCCXXVII. aetate S. R. E. Cardinalis, deinde Dux creatus, singulari pietate, ac Religione amore ita excelluit, ut in eo vixit Christiani Principis exemplum unusquisque semper animaretur. Tum Solutus, tum Conjugatus, rigidus comitatus, temperantia in victu sollicitus sectator, nulli unquam illecebris se dimoveri ab honestatis tramite permisit. Cum inclita Brunsvicensium ducum, nunc Magna-Britanniae Regnantium, interruptum per plura saecula sanguinis nexum, Affinitates etiam cum Augustissimae Austriae Gente & cum potentissima Francorum Regum Prosapia, renovavit. Bellicas procellas, quibus non melius optatus est, invictis animo tulit, felici exitu superavit. Et illi eximia ingenii, atque iudicii perspi acia, in publicis rebus rara industria, atque sedulitas. Nullus ad eum accedebat, qui eloquentiam non miraretur, prudentiam, comitatem, & affabilitatem encomiis non prosequeretur. Pueris ac Puellis paupertate pressis nobile domicilium Mutinae constituit, atque dotavit. Ut in eadem urbe sacra Templum restaurarentur, Pietas augetur; ut inter ipsius Pax, & Justitia regnaret, operam perpetuo dedit. Ducatu Mirandulae, Marchionatu Concordiae, Comitatu Novellariae in Italia, aliisque in Hungaria ditionibus optatum Principatum curavit. Sed heu mors omnia solvit! Laboribus denique, & aetate confectus, Ducatus, suarumque civitatum Heredem relinquit FRANCISCUM MARCIANUM FILIUM, nunc in Servia, & Bosnia contra Turcas illustris bellica fortitudinis signa praestantem. seculum hinc, quod ab Avia Piissima Itabella Principissa de Sabaudia inchoatum, sibi Posterisque suis ipse perfecit, quod Christiani Regulares Corpus commendavit.

If you would be satisfy'd, Reader, who lies here, know, That 'tis Rainaud I. Duke of Modena, Reggio, and Mirandola, Marquis of Este, and Count of Rhodige; who was born the 24th of April, 1665. and dy'd the 26th of October, 1737. He was first a Cardinal of the Holy Roman Church, and then created a Duke. He was so eminent for his singular Piety and Love of Religion, that he was always considered every where as a lively Pattern of a Christian Prince. He kept so strict a Watch upon his Thoughts, and was so cautious of Intemperance in his Diet, as well in his Single, as in his Marry'd State, that he never suffered himself to be drawn aside, by any Allurements, from the Path of Virtue. He renewed the Affinity of his Family, which had been interrupted for many Centuries, to the illustrious House of the Dukes of Brunswick, now upon the Throne of Great Britain, as well as other Alliances by Blood with the most August House of Austria, and with the most Potent Lineage of the Kings of France. He suffered with invincible Courage, and happily surmounted the Storms of War, by which he had been shaken more than once. He was endowed with quick Parts, and a penetrating Judgment, and his Diligence and Dispatch in State-Affairs, were hardly to be paralleled. Not a Soul had Access to him, but admir'd his Eloquence, and extol'd his Wisdom, Courtesy, and Affability. He founded and endowed a noble Mansion at Modena, for poor Children of both Sexes; and he always took Care that the Churches in that City were repaired; that Piety might increase, and Peace and Righteousness bear Sway among his Subjects. He augmented the Principality of his Ancestors with the Duchy of Mirandola, the Marquisate of Concordia, the County of Novarella in Italy, and other Domains in Hungary. But alas! Death puts a Period to all Things! At length being worn out with Fatigues and Old Age, leaving for the Heir of his Duchy, and his Virtues, FRANCIS-MARY, his Son; who is now giving illustrious Proofs, in Servia and Bosnia, of his Valour, in the War against the Turks, He gave Order that his Corps should be deposited with the Regular Clergy in this Tomb, which was begun by Isabel, Princess of Savoy, his most pious Grandmother, and which he afterwards finished for himself and his Posterity.

The Letters from the Imperial Army say, that on the 9th of last Month O. S. which was the Day that the Count Seckendorff resign'd the Command of the Army to Count Philippi, and set out Post with General Diemar for Vienna, General Marulli, the Commandant at Belgrade, received Orders from a Council of War to arrest General Schmettau; but the latter having some Hint given him, march'd out of Town the Day before. 'Tis thought by some, that his Escape, if it prove advantageous to himself, may be very prejudicial to the Count de Seckendorff, because of the Intimacy betwixt them.

One of the Foreign Popish Gazettes, in a Letter from a staunch Catholic at Vienna, no Friend we may be sure to the Count de Seckendorff, gives this insolent Account of that Noble Officer's Disgrace.

'Till Sunday last (viz. October 23) none but Persons of the best Intelligence knew that Count Seckendorff was under an Arrest: But in the Evening the Thunder broke out, to the great Satisfaction of the whole City. He lodges in the first Floor of Enckerturd House, to which about 7 o'Clock repair'd the Lieut. Col. Miller of Milibourg, Major of the Town, with a Guard of 12 Soldiers, 2 Corporals and an Exemot, and acquainted him of his Imperial Majesty's Orders. An Officer is posted in his Chamber, and 3 Soldiers in his Anti-chamber, with Bayonets at the End of their Muskets. He sees no Soul besides those Guardian Angels, and receives no Letters. The Doors of his House are shut up betimes, and not open'd till very late next Morning.

Some Hours after the Count return'd to Town from the Army, a Firework was let off; but it was by mere Chance: Yet there are Protestants here, who pretend that 'twas to do Honour to that Outed General; and perhaps there are others elsewhere stupid enough to patronise and blazon the impertinent Conceit. But true it is, that among the Well-affected, there's not a Man but rejoices for the Count's happy Arrival, and for the Honours which the Court has paid him; and the very Buffoon who is his Imperial Majesty's Jester, has upon this Occasion given Vent to his Sentiments: For hearing what Time Count Seckendorff was to come to Town, he went to wait for him disguised like a Postillion, and mounted upon a sorry Jade, and as the Count pass'd by, he fell in with the Rear of his Equipage, blowing a Horn, and bawling out

'every now and then, in his Droll way, Victory! Victory! all thro' the City, till the Count came to his house.

Another Novellist of the same Kidney, viz. the Author of the Paris Letter, pretends to be already acquainted with the Articles laid to the Charge of the Count de Seckendorff, but he is pleas'd to favour his Correspondents with no more than this one; viz. 'That he is accus'd of having put the Emperor upon breaking the Treaty of Passarowitz, and declaring the War against the Turks; and of being, consequently, the main Cause of the Loss of so many of the Emperor's Officers and Soldiers.

The Author of the Popish Gazette above-mentioned, adds to his Intelligence from Vienna, that the Bashaw of Bosnia, at the Head of 80,000 Men, was advanc'd within 3 Hours March of the Imperial Army, and would undoubtedly have attacked it, if the Velt-Marshall Philippi had not had the Precaution to call in all the Troops which his worthy Predecessor had dispersed, and to chuse a more advantageous Camp.
